December 2009

Dear Parent(s),

Thank you for pledging to help keep our youth alcohol, tobacco and drug free. I am happy to provide the 2009-2010 Parent Pledge Directory. This is a directory of - grade students and their families who share the same concerns regarding underage drinking, tobacco and drug use.

It is my hope that this directory will serve as a resource for you to network with other parents by allowing you to contact parents and confirm there will be adult supervision at the events your child wishes to attend. Remind your student that it is not a matter of you not trusting him/her; rather, it is part of being a responsible parent who loves and cares about him/her.

This year we have included information from two websites; Adolescent Substance Abuse Knowledge Base and Focus Adolescent Services.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Christopher M. Doyle". The signature is written in a cursive, flowing style.

Christopher M. Doyle
Principal

Your Teen (www.adolescent-substance-abuse.com/index.htm)

Parents who develop a strategy early on in their child's life to communicate and support them during stressful times have the highest rate of success when it comes to resisting peer pressure to experiment with alcohol and drugs.

Create – Connect – Communicate

Create a safe, supportive environment within which to discuss the risks associated with alcohol and drug use. The younger you start the better. Don't be afraid that by talking about drugs you will peak their curiosity. They will hear about drugs whether you bring it up or not, and if as a parent you can get the first word on this topic, you will be ahead of the game when peers begin to pressure your teen into using illegal substances.

Connect with teens to find out what they know, how they feel, and what pressures they face. Don't assume your kids know everything they need to know about drugs. There are unique pressures facing teens today. The atmosphere we live in these days creates an overall feeling of tension and uncertainty, as students who once just worried about SAT scores are now worrying about FBI warnings of possible terrorist attacks.

Teaching the line, "Just Say No" is simply not enough. It neglects the underlying pressures that teens face today. Its simplistic message tends to turn teens off, or become a source of humor for them. Rather than just telling them not to use drugs, teach them about the harmful effects and about the consequences (physical, mental, and emotional) they can expect. Don't talk down to your teens. Talk to them as you would any person you want to teach an important subject. Listen to their concerns, objections, fears, and questions. "Because I said so," is not enough for teens growing into independent adulthood.

Communicate clearly what you expect and what the consequences of use will be. Evidence clearly shows that the lowest rates of alcohol and drug use occur among those children and adolescents whose parents set clear expectations for their kids and follow through with discipline when the rules are broken. If you do not discuss your expectations about alcohol and drug use, your child will decide on his/her own what to do.

Warning Signs of Teen Substance Abuse (.focusas.com/SubstanceAbuse.)

Physical – fatigue, repeated health complaints, red and glazed eyes, lasting cough

Emotional - personality change, sudden mood changes, irritability, irresponsible behavior, low self-esteem, poor judgment, depression, general lack of interest

Family - starting arguments, negative attitude, breaking rules, withdrawing from family, secretiveness

School - decreased interest, negative attitude, drop in grades, many absences, discipline problems

Social Problems - new friends who make poor decisions and are not interested in school or family activities, problems with the law, changes in dress and music

Some of the warning signs listed above can also be signs of other problems. Parents may recognize signs of trouble but should not be expected to make the diagnosis.

Consulting a physician to rule out physical causes of the warning signs is a good first step.
